Star Costs Spiral for Brutes

While teams like the ROUSs and Sylvanian Fangs are duking it out over playoff spots and teams like the Greenskin Smackers are steadily building for next year, teams like the Bogenhafen Brute Squad are suffering from another kind of challenge: the spiraling expenses of having so many stars. Winnings have been taxed by deals made by players signing new contracts. Rumors persist that star thrower Westley actually has a provision in his contract for regular doses of Iocane Powder to be delivered to his room so he can strengthen his throwing game by building up an immunity. Vizzini, back-up thrower for the team responded to critics on the player demands, "Not getting my M&Ms seperated before they arrive at my trailer? Inconcievable!" Some members of the team are more humble about the Brute Squad's accomplishments. Fezzik claimed he is "happy not just being sent back [to Greenland]." Prior to his run as one of this season's most terrifying killers, the star was unemployed. The Fractured Leg caught up with Raegnes, franchised player from the New Ulthuan Patriots about what's kept the Pats from suffering similar costs with their series of wins, "Well, it's simple really. As long as all our recruits keep dieing, none of us are bold enough to ask for more money." There you have it folks! The key to success in Blood Bowl is (no surprises here for the fans at home) BLOOD! -Zzap Bittlebottom

GOBBO ON DA GREEN

Gobbo was on da green, watchin' dem Van Helsing's Voodooos fight da conference leaders, the New Ulthuan Patriots, and man was it a game! Watchin' division first and seconds face off is sure to be a good game, but dis one was especially exciting, wit some crowd surfin', big bounties on both sides, and even a freak weather disaster. What are de odds of a blizzard at de end of da half? Cuddles and Landwen both survived dis match. I caught a word from da elfish dancer after da game. She had dis to say, "I focused most of my energy on ending the unlife of gross Zombies. It is the worst when bits of decaying brain end up on my freshly painted nails!" When asked for a reply, Cuddles quipped, "Grrr. Argh." Look at dat rivalry!

MIDAS THE MEAN'S GOLDEN TOUCH

Ok Blood Bowl fans the season is wrapping up and we have a great match up for you to lose your coins on! This week features the D-Orcs, a hard hitting Orc team, vs the Huatl Hurdlers, the Slaan who have been leaping over everyone in the league. The D-Orcs will enjoy some frog legs after this game, but they will have to be comfort food as the Hurdlers will leap to a 3 TD win.

This is one of the rare times that I will make this guarantee: if you don't bet on the Hurdlers, not only will I keep your coins, I will publicly mock you.

Obituaries - In Memoriam

Pipsqueak, of the Voodoos met the terrible fate of a death by goblin mob. The team has passed the torch to Petunia, his son and heir. May he avoid the pitchforks.

Feivel has gone, but to his grave rather than West. Iain ended the poor skaven's American Dream, and cost the R.O.U.S.s yet another player.

The Har Ganeth Hydras are mourning the loss of Norrax'u this week. His mother said he didn't have what it took to make it in the big leagues. Guess she was right.

William, skink for the Colt-Blooded, was unceremoniously tombstoned by The Undertaker.
